Toxicologist / Chemical food safety expert As Senior Scientific Project Manager

The International Life Sciences Institute (ILSI) is a non-profit, worldwide foundation established in 1978 to advance the understanding of scientific issues relating to nutrition, food safety, toxicology and the environment. By bringing together scientists from academia, government and industry, ILSI seeks to improve the well being of the general public. Today, ILSI enjoys the support of more than 400 companies worldwide and a large network of scientists throughout the world. The European Branch of ILSI ILSI Europe is based in Brussels, Belgium. Its team comprises 23 persons of eight nationalities.

Do you fit the following profile?

- PhD followed by several years of experience in toxicology, preferably food toxicology or chemical food safety.
- Experience in project management, preferably in an international organisation.
- Flexible, dynamic and constructive team player with good communication skills.
- Excellent command of written and spoken English.
- Willingness to relocate to Brussels, Belgium.
- Preferably with work experience and a network in Europe.

Task overview

- Coordinating task force activities. This includes organising meetings with scientists from academia, industry and government, coordinating publications, organising scientific workshops, presenting the outcome of the activities, budgeting, and obtaining funding by member companies and outside organisations.
- Managing the programme of the Risk and Benefit Assessment cluster of task forces (<http://europe.ilsa.org/activities/taskforces/riskassessment/>).
- Supervision and coaching of Scientific Project Manager(s).
